Why a startup call?

To face world's main challenges, industry calls for innovative solutions that deep tech have the potential to offer.

Against the urgency of climate change, the nuclear industry provides carbon-free energy. However Orano is dedicated to broadening its activities.

We are launching this call to empower deep tech startups, and turn collaborations into new businesses. We are looking to discover new opportunities, and to leverage the materials, technologies and unique skills of the nuclear industry to support sustainable economic development.
